How to use the Experience Database

A 5 minute walkthrough for GMs and head office

mm-costing-tool.vercel.app

1. Sign in

Open mm-costing-tool.vercel.app and use the email and password from the login sheet. GMs see only their own hostel. Head office picks any hostel from the dropdown at the top. If you hover over almost anything in the tool, a small tooltip explains what it does.

2. The Experiences table

This is your product list: every tour, nightly event, one time event, 3rd party tour and transfer at your hostel. Use the search box, the category and status dropdowns, or the M T W T F S S buttons to answer questions like "what runs here on a Monday?" in one click.

3. Editing, the important part

- Change a price: click the rate, type the new USD number, press Enter. Done, live immediately.
- Change the days it runs: click the days, tap the letters on or off.
- Change descriptions, inclusions, itinerary: click the product name to open the detail panel, edit the text, click away to save.
- If you change a price by more than 40 percent the tool asks "are you sure?" once. That is there to catch typing 450 instead of 45.

> There is no save button and no approval step. Every change goes live the moment you make it, and every change is recorded with your name, the time, and the old and new value. If something goes wrong we can always see exactly what happened and put it back.

4. The two switches, and when to use each

WEBSITE

Turn on when this product is sold on the Mad Monkey website (or should be).

Turn off for on the ground only products, transport, and anything not sold online.

This switch is a label, it is not connected to the website. What it really controls: any change to a Website marked product sends an automatic email to Reden listing exactly what changed, so he can update the site by hand. Products with it off never email anyone.

ACTIVE

On means running on the ground right now.

Turn off when a product stops running for a while: low season, staff shortage, supplier issues, or it is being reworked.

Turning it off pauses the product. It stays in the database with all its details, but it disappears from the quoting tool so nobody sells it while it is not running. Turn it back on any time. Nothing is ever deleted. If you think something should be removed permanently, pause it and tell head office.

5. What the status badges mean

Active running normally Signature a flagship Mad Monkey tour Pending details are being updated, treat with care Paused not running, hidden from quoting

These are the same meanings as the colour code in the old spreadsheet. Click a badge to change it.

6. Adding a new product

Click + Add product. The form will not let you save until the required basics are filled in: a title, a category, a short description under 95 characters, and the days it runs. That limit exists because the short description goes to the website word for word. New products start as not bookable on the website; switch that on when it is ready to be listed.

7. The "to fix" list, please clear yours

The orange counter at the top right is the cleanup list from the old spreadsheet. When we moved everything across, anything the spreadsheet said that could not be read with certainty was flagged instead of guessed. Mostly it is prices written as sentences, like "$25 pre sale $30 on the day", which a computer cannot turn into one number.

- Click the counter. Each item shows what the old sheet said and gives you a one tap or one line fix.
- Products without a proper price cannot be added to a quote. Clearing your list is what makes your hostel fully sellable.
- The progress bar shows your hostel getting closer to done.

8. Activity, the change log

The Activity page shows every change at your hostel: who, what, when, and the before and after. This is the safety net that replaces approvals. It cannot be edited or switched off.

9. Quotes and agreements (head office and anyone quoting groups)

- New quote: Quotes, New quote, enter the trip name, group size and customer.
- Build the trip day by day: add a Stay (pick hostel, room type and season, the rate fills in automatically from Hayley's rate sheet), add Experiences (the list only shows what actually runs that day at that hostel, with a "show everything" override), add Transport and custom lines.
- Discounts and comps: hover a line, click the percent icon. Logged against your name.
- Generate agreement version: freezes every price into a numbered version and gives you a share link. The client page shows the itinerary and totals only, no cost breakdown. Frozen means frozen: if a GM changes a tour price tomorrow, the quote you sent today does not move. A change request just makes version 2.

10. Where prices come from

Tour and event prices live here and are edited here by GMs. Bed and breakfast prices come from Hayley's 2027 rate sheet automatically, within about 5 minutes of her editing it. The old experience flow chart spreadsheet is being retired; once you have your login, all product edits happen here and only here.

The three golden rules

1. Do not edit the old spreadsheet any more. This tool is the single source of truth.
2. Never worry about breaking something. Nothing is deleted, everything is logged, everything can be traced and restored.
3. If a price or product is wrong on the website, fix it here first, the switch makes sure Reden finds out.
